MANAGEMENT: PLANNING FOR POST LOCKDOWN - REINTEGRATING THE TEAM (VIRTUAL)

For this session you will need:

- ✓ a laptop / PC with audio and video capability
- ✓ a good, strong internet connection
- ✓ a quiet space (headphones or earphones are good but not essential)

Overview

The enforced changes resulting from the pandemic have had an impact on both relationships in the workplace and on the way we work.

Without acknowledging this and putting support in place we risk a detrimental impact on staff engagement and consequently on effectiveness and efficiency in the workplace.

Who is it for?

This virtual interactive session is for managers and teams who want to rebuild, reconnect and discover new, improved ways of working following lockdown.

What will you learn?

The primary objective of this session is to enable people to re-engage and get back to effective, efficient collaborative work by:

- Acknowledging the impact of recent changes in order to move forward (changes could have resulted in resentment and disconnection from colleagues, fear, sadness, anger and disempowerment)
- Rebuilding relationships and re-establishing collaboration and communication
- Profiting from the learnings of lockdown
- Playing an active role in exploring new, improved ways of working

The session focus will be threefold:

- Self - recognising the human impact and identifying where we are on the change curve, what's niggling us and what we need to move forward
- The Team - acknowledging the value and contribution of our colleagues and the power of collaborative working and creativity - rebuilding communication, creativity and collaboration and identifying priorities

- The Organisation - exploring new ways of working, reviewing our practices to identify opportunities for greater effectiveness and efficiency

The intention is that by the end of the session people come away positive, energised and re-engaged with their roles and their colleagues.

The course is designed to be very much an action-focused session, prompting thought and encouraging action so that everyone really engages in moving forward and comes away with a will and a plan.
